MILLER TELLS KIWANIANS OF O. S. U. FURORE

Professor "Fired" by University Trustees Is Club Speaker Here.

SAYS HE TAUGHT TRUTH

Asserts Heads of Institution Have No Academic Recognition.

His determination to teach conditions as they are and as he holds they will be, rather than how they would be under ideal conditions, was given by Prof. Herbert A. Miller, former instructor in Ohio State university, as the reasons for the refusal of the trustees of the university to renew his contract this year, in a talk before the Kiwanis club at the weekly luncheon at the Marion club at noon today. Failure of the university trustees to reappoint Miller caused nationwide discussion several weeks ago.

Works with Gandhi

A statement made in India after spending three days with Gandhi, in which he said the application of religion to the problems of the country should prove their greatest contribution, was given by Prof. Miller as the opening of the campaign against the renewing of his contract with the university.

"I had been studying intensively the religious forces in India," the speaker said, "and after spending three days with Gandhi I spoke in Bombay charging that the application of religion to the solution of their internal and external problems would be their great contribution. I was immediately charged with helping Gandhi's revolution while in reality I was simply trying to interpret it."

His views on the racial problems of the world, were also given by

HOOVER SEEKS TO AID MINERS

Administration Plans Joint Conference Soon of Operators and Workers.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, July 23 — One of the sick giants of American industry, bituminous coal mining, is to be given attention under administration auspices in the hope of encouraging a long-delayed recovery.

After a conference with President Hoover, Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont announced inquiries had been sent to 150 bituminous operators asking if they would attend a joint conference with miners soon.

This joint conference was urged upon the administration by President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers. Recently bituminous operators met with secretary Lamont but after two sessions adjourned in a pessimistic atmosphere with a feeling that little could be done to help the situation. At that time operators said little benefit could come from a joint conference. Miners were aggrieved at having been omitted from the conference and insisted upon another meeting at which they could be heard in the presence of the operators.

The bituminous industry has been in trouble much of the time since the war. Over-production and labor troubles have combined to make this one of the most harassed industries and one which has caused President Hoover much concern almost ever since he became secretary of commerce in 1921. The development of pipelines, of oil and gas for industrial fuel, and the extension of hydroelectric power which is estimated to displace 30,000,000 tons of bituminous coal a year have added burdens of staggering weight.

President Hoover recently wrote Lewis expressing his desire to do everything possible to aid the industry in a constructive program put forward by the operators and miners.

WIFE SLAYER GETS STAY OF EXECUTION

Tilby Smith Granted Respite Pending Hearing of Appeal.

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 23—Tilby Smith, Ashtabula wife slayer, sentenced to die Aug. 17, today was granted an indefinite stay of execution by the appeals court until his appeal from conviction on a first degree murder charge is heard by the court. The first session at which the appeal can be considered will be held in Jefferson, Aug. 24.

Smith was convicted of conniving with Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther to kill his wife from ambush. The slaying occurred May 29, 1930. Mrs. Lowther recently was convicted of first degree murder, in connection with the case and also is under sentence of death.

Smith's appeal is based on alleged error by the trial court.

Capture Slayer of 2 Dry Agents in Fort Wayne

Liquor Runner Caught Without Difficulty Four Hours After Highway Gun Battle with Four Federal Prohibition Officers.

By The Associated Press

FORT WAYNE, Ind., July 23—Four hours after he shot and killed two federal prohibition agents to escape a trap they laid for him, George Adams, reputed Fort Wayne bootlegger, and former convict, was captured by local police early today.

Cornered on a road at the south edge of the city with a load of liquor the agents had ordered last night, Adams shot and killed at close range John J. Wilson, 40, of Rockwell City, Ia., ranking special agent in the Indianapolis prohibition enforcement office. Wilson was said by his companions to be unarmed.

Then wounded in the neck and cheek by shots from the gun of Walter M. Gilbert, 33, special agent from Cincinnati, Adams returned the fire and Gilbert fell, fatally wounded. He died an hour later in a Fort Wayne hospital.

Two Escape Fire

A special federal prohibition informer, C. E. Green of Portland, Ind., and another special agent, Oliver J. Gettle of Indianapolis, who said Adams "seemed crazy," dove for cover to escape the fire from Adams' gun. Both were cut by barbed wire fencing in a culvert into which they dropped.

Adams made his escape, and a wide search was organized. Local police, tipped off by federal agents, captured him without a shot be-

PROMISE LINDY GOOD WEATHER

Famous Couple Prepare To Start Air Voyage to Orient Next Week.

CHARTS ARE EXAMINED

Greatest Hazards Between Bering Sea and Japan, Experts Believe.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23 — The Lindberghs have selected an auspicious season for their vacation air trip to the Orient, which they expect to start next week.

Officials of the weather bureau, consulting records of the north Pacific and the Bering sea—many of them compiled by Japan—found average conditions in late July and early August to rank with the best for flying in that region.

Later the menace of storm, fog and ice forming on the wings increases. The northern summer, which wanes rapidly after middle August, now is at its peak.

"Quiet Month"

However, Charles L. Mitchell, weather forecaster, pointed out that in the nature of the region's weather, the averages might be far from conditions obtaining this year. In August, "one of the quieter months," he said, "there are usually two or three disturbances over the ocean each day. Most, however, pass to the south of the selected course."

Weather observers believe the greatest hazards before the fliers lie from the sub-arctic Alaskan regions southwest over the Bering sea to the Kamchatka peninsula of Siberia and the Kuril islands to Japan.

The Aleutian islands, extending west and south from the Alaskan peninsula, the path of most north Pacific storms, is far to the south of the course chosen over the Bering sea.

The erratic summer storms which lash the region begin in late August. As the north's brief summer wanes they increase in number, severity and duration.

Throughout the route, weather forecast stations are comparatively scanty.

Charts Compiled

Weather bureaus of Japan and the United States gather reports from ships that were in the area, often months later, from which to compile charts.

Radio stations of the nation's military form a communications network over the north Pacific, the Bering sea and Alaska, to help the Lindberghs on their flight.

The navy has the distance stations, powered to reach 3,000 miles with ease. The chief set of the plane the Lindberghs plan to fly to the Orient is calculated to exceed that range.

In addition, it carries in a collapsible rubber boat, a crash-proof set which can be operated from the waters' surface, with a range upward from 500 miles.

Although its principal Pacific coast station is at San Francisco, the navy has one at St. Paul island, in the Pribiloff group in the middle of the Bering sea to the north of the Aleutian island chain.

UNKIND BANDIT

Forces Ohio Victim To Chauffeur Car in "Birthday Suit"

By International News Service

WASHINGTON C. H., July 23—A story of how Thomas Anders, 50, with only the darkness for clothing, was forced to do chauffeur duty for a bandit who invaded the privacy of his bedroom while he was undressing for bed, today sent authorities off on a hunt for the thief.

Anders, who resides alone near Buena Vista, had just returned from prayer meeting and was about ready to slip into bed when the intruder entered.

Disregarding Anders' nudity, the bandit compelled his host to surrender $80, then ordered him to enter his automobile and take him to a place near Greenfield, O.

There they parted, the bandit being careful that Anders had nothing but a tire cover to wear home, according to the police account.

FACES PRISON

Lord Kylsant (above), once the Napoleon of the shipping world as dictator of the vast Royal Mail fleet, faces a long term in prison if he is convicted in London of business offenses, including falsifying his company's reports for his own advantage. Immaculately dressed, as always, the English peer has drawn a large crowd to court.

Ohio Marriage License Notice Law in Effect

The new marriage license law requiring Ohio couples to make application five days before obtaining a marriage license went into effect at midnight Wednesday.

However, in Marion county and many other sections of the state, a majority of marriage licenses issued will continue to give the recipients the right to wed immediately if they so choose.

Suspension of the five-day delay in marriages can be made by probate judges if they are satisfied that the couples are residents of the county. The five-day provision was inserted in the marriage laws by the legislature this year to prevent "gin marriages." As most probate judges previously refused licenses to persons under influence of liquor or not in their right senses, the new law will have little effect.

Probate Judge Oscar Gast has announced that known residents of the county who are reputable citizens will have no trouble showing "just cause" for suspending the five-day rule in obtaining licenses.

CHINA GIVES SLAYER TO AMERICAN CONSUL

Dr. Tucker To Face U. S. Court for Shooting of Chinese Native.

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, July 23—An authoritative dispatch from Peiping today said Chinese authorities at Tsinanfu had surrendered Dr. Francis F. Tucker, American missionary held for fatally shooting a Chinese employe of a mission hospital, to the American consul at Tsinanfu on instructions from the nationalist government.

The American consul, acting on instructions from Washington yesterday requested Chinese officials to deliver Dr. Tucker into his custody. The missionary was arrested recently at Techow.

In the hands of American authorities, Dr. Tucker will be tried under United States laws rather than under Chinese statutes. The extra-territorial privileges granted by China to the United States and other countries permits these nations to maintain jurisdiction over their nationals in Chinese territory.

Dr. Tucker said he shot the Chinese thinking he was a burglar.

Chinese authorities were reported to have demanded Dr. Tucker's execution, an apology from the American minister, and payment of an indemnity.

POWERS GIVE GERMAN CREDIT PLAN APPROVAL

Longer Term Loans Made Possible as London Conference Is Concluded.

GIVE FAREWELL TALKS

All Pleased with Evidence of Friendliness; More Problems Ahead.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 23—Renewal of short term credits maturing in the next few weeks and measures to establish confidence in Germany so that eventual long term credits will be possible were approved by the seven-power conference on Germany's situation at the conclusion of its work this afternoon.

The meeting was adjourned with a round of speeches in which the heads of the various delegations expressed their appreciation of the spirit of friendliness which pervaded the conference, and later there was an official communique which said "the governments are ready to cooperate so far as lies within their power to restore confidence."

There was, however, no disguising the gravity of the German representatives as they left the conference room.

Danger Not Past

Chancellor Bruening declined to make any statement, and while Foreign Minister Curtius was officially hopeful, other members of the delegation remarked privately that the conference had only tided Germany over the immediate future and the contingencies of the next few days may renew the crisis.

Besides the resolution extending $100,000,000 central bank credit which matures Aug. 16, and another recommending that "concerted measures" will be taken to maintain the volume of credits already in Germany, there are two other phases of the meeting's final report.

The first of these is the recommendation that the world bank at Basel be invited to set up immediately a committee of representatives of the central banks to inquire into the immediate further needs of Germany and to study the possibilities of converting part of the short-term credits into long-term credits.

The second phase is an expression of commendation for the guarantee recently placed at the disposal of the German gold discount bank by the leaders of German industry and finance.

"The conference considers that if these measures are carried through," says the official communique, "they will form a basis for more permanent action to follow."

It was announced that tentative arraignments have been made for Secretary of State Stimson and possibly Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to go to Berlin tonight with the German delegation.

Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson of Great Britain will go by train, probably Sunday, and Prime Minister MacDonald will fly over Monday.

HOOVER PLEASED

"Sound Foundations" Laid by Conference, President Says.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23 President Hoover said today the London conference had "laid sound foundations for the establishment of stability in Germany."

The program adopted by the conference, he said, supplements the suspension of inter-governmental debts already in effect.

"The combined effect," he added, "should enable the German people with their resources, industry and courage, to overcome the temporary difficulties and restore their credit."

At the same time the President forwarded telegrams of congratulations to Secretaries Stimson and Mellon, who conducted the American negotiations in London.

Capt. Hawks Loses No Time in Getting Back at Rival

Hawks landed in Havana eight hours and eight minutes after leaving New York and spent 32 minutes for refueling at Wilmington, N. C., and Miami, on the way.

He was in the air only seven hours and 36 minutes. Hall made his flight non-stop, so his elapsed time and flying time were the same.

BLAST INJURES NON-UNION MEN

One Miner Seriously Hurt as Explosion Damages Garage Near Pittsburgh.

VICTIMS WERE SLEEPING

18 of 76 Arrested Yesterday Held Under Bond for Inciting To Riot Charges.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, July 23 An explosion damaged a garage in which six non-union miners were sleeping and injured the men, one of them probably seriously, at the Wildwood mine of the Butler Consolidated coal company early today.

The mine was the scene of rioting between striking miners and deputy sheriffs, in which one man was killed June 22. The explosion this morning was believed to have been caused by a bomb.

Fearing repetition of Tuesday's attack, when they were fired upon from ambush, 500 miners of the Standard Mining company at McKinleyville, W. Va., have refused to return to the pit. Efforts were being made today to resume operations.

Fifty-eight of the 76 miners arrested after the shooting were released by Brooke county authorities yesterday. Eighteen others were held in $2,500 bond each, charged with violation of the Red mann act (inciting to riot).

Meanwhile the West Virginia bituminous regions had another flare of disorder to investigate. More than a score of shots were fired yesterday at the miners leaving the Ward mine of the Kelly's Creek colliery company, none was hurt.

State police said about 45 men leaving the mine in coal cars for the bottom of an incline to catch a train home, were fired upon from a grove nearby. Troopers stationed on guard at the plant returned the fire.

Father Causes Son's Arrest on Forgery Charge

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., July 23—Because his father, an elderly Canadian, believed the rules of justice must be served, Oscar Herbert Campbell, 35, of St. Boniface, Manitoba, faced arraignment in a justice of the peace court here today on a charge of forgery.

The father, who is mayor of St. Boniface, gave his son to the police here last night after a 1,600-mile automobile trip from their home. The younger man spent the night in jail.

Before the surrender, Campbell and his father obtained the services of a lawyer and discussed the case with representatives of the county prosecutor's office. The elder Campbell indicated he would make restitution for the amount of the forgery.

The accused man was charged with forging a $645 check of a Canadian life insurance company, which had been given him to deliver to a Cleveland client. Campbell had been sought for more than a year by detectives here.

When the father heard of the situation, he insisted the son should answer the charge, and they drove all the way here to do it.

CONFERENCE HELD BY POPE AND CARDINALS

Secret Discussion Relates to Conflicts Between Church and States.

By The Associated Press

VATICAN CITY, July 23—Conflicts between the church and state in Italy, Spain, Mexico and Lithuania were discussed today by Pope Pius with 20 cardinals of the curia summoned hurriedly to a meeting which took on the importance of a special consistory.

The session, in the Vatican library, lasted nearly three hours and was conducted in the greatest secrecy. When it was over no statement was issued.

It was believed the situation in Spain was particularly prominent in the discussion on the basis of a report by the cardinal-archbishop of Tarragona, who flew from Barcelona to see the pope and returned to Spain by airplane yesterday.

It was assumed the pontiff gave the cardinals a detailed account of the situation here, in Mexico, Spain and Lithuania and in some quarters it was believed the cardinals had been called into conference because of recent criticism in Italy that the pope has been acting independently without consulting the cardinals.

Crestline filling station proprietor had been asked for protection money by bogus agents.

Wilhelm was instructed to go to the appointed spot with $200 to give Sheriff Vollmer and the state prohibition men an opportunity to capture the bogus officers, Vollmer's statement asserts.

The sheriff and his party were told that the fake officers would be driving an automobile bearing license number 91-894. Although they saw an automobile bearing license numer 916-894, they did not attempt to halt the car because the license number was not identical to the one given them.

Abductors Escape

Not until the abductors had taken Wilhelm into their automobile and driven away did the sheriff and his party pursue them, according to the statement. In a faster automobile, the abductors escaped.

An investigation into the alleged protection racket was launched by state and federal prohibition men when Wilhelm said the abductors told him they were prohibition agents. The investigation had been under way several days when it was suddenly closed this morning after state and federal agents had been absolved of any suspicion.

Russia in industry and production, with all of its so called "overproduction," is able to consume 90 per cent of all of its products.

The world would be much better off and our best minds would sleep peacefully if Russia could become successful and rich, in which case it would no longer be "red," and if China and other countries now harassed with revolt and poverty could follow suit.

IF YOU are a "capitalist" Leon Trotzky has bad news for you. He says Russian sovietism or capitalism must die. They can't both continue to live side by side on the same globe.

Trotzky, who helped Lenin in the early days, has since been exiled, attacks Stalin as a mixture of socialism and capitalism.

Briefly, Trotzky says, that there must be a world revolution covering all natons, or sovietism must fall. That is bad news for Stalin, for there will be no world revolution.

CAPTURE SLAYER OF TWO LIQUOR AGENTS

Rum Runner Stages Highway Gun Battle with Officers Near Ft. Wayne.

ing fired early today as he drove up to the home here of Frank V. Kenierski. He was placed in the Allen county jail.

Lloyd Krouse, to whose home 12 miles south of here Adams drove after the shooting, was held as a material witness. Krouse bandaged Adams' neck and then drove him in Krouse's car to Fort Wayne where they were taken into custody.

Major Howard Long, deputy prohibition administrator for northern Indiana, arrived today for an official investigation of the shooting. Arrival of Oliver M. Loomis, federal district attorney for northern Indiana, was awaited before Adams will be given a hearing.

Is Former Convict

Adams was released from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth last January. He was sentenced by Judge Thomas W. Slick of South Bend, Ind., Oct. 7, 1929, after pleading guilty to three federal liquor law charges.

Green, the informer who helped set the trap for Adams last night, was treated at a hospital, and then telephoned officers at Portland, asking a guard be stationed at his home to protect members of his family from possible attacks. Portland records revealed he had been convicted of 21 counts of liquor law violation, and had served the sentence concurrently.

Green and agent Gilbert spent an hour at Adams home early last night, arranging for purchase of a load of liquor. They assigned the meeting place, near Shellhorn bridge on the lower Huntington road a mile south of here. When Adams drove up, agents closed in. Adams drew a revolver, and the shooting began.

Gilbert fired the first shot, according to Green and Gettle, after Adams said: "I'm going to kill you——."

Jerry Sierer, 40, of Waynedale, was driving past the cars as the shooting started. He turned about and witnessed most of the battle.

"I saw one man shooting at two others who were in the road," Sierer said. "One, who I learned was Wilson, dropped to the pavement, and as the others turned, Adams followed them, shooting. After they dropped he walked back to Wilson, apparently to reload his gun, and then fired four or five shots into Wilson as he lay on the ground."

Browns Borrow 'Farm' Idea from Nearby Cards

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS—The St. Louis Cardinals' "farm system" for developing young players, which has brought three National league pennants and one world's championship to the Mound City in five seasons, may soon have a neighborly rival.

Taking a leaf from the book of Messrs. Breadon, Rickey & Street, that well-known sportsman, Phil Ball, turned agrarian.

With floods here and drouth there it has taken him a good while to prepare a couple of likely tracts for the Brownies, but there is evidence that the long-awaited bumper harvest is finally at hand.

In a recent home stay of 24 games the Browns astounded the experts, the customers and possibly themselves by winning 16 for a percentage of .667, boosting themselves well out of the cellar.

Among their victims were the league leading Athletics who dropped four out of five, the second-place Senators, who lost two out of three, and the third-place Yankees, who emerged on the short end three times in a five-game series.

George Blaeholder, who set the Washington outfit back on their heels with a two-hit hurling performance, came up from Tulsa, formerly one of Mr. Ball's estates. Other Browns to clout or toss their way out of the brush and make good include Larry Bettencourt, Jack Burns, Jim Levey, Ralph Kress, Chad Kimsey and Wallace Hebert.

Promising young men from the minors make up 50 per cent of the 1931 squad, with Milwaukee in the American association and Wichita Falls in the Texas league principal sources of supply.

TENSION INCREASES IN SPANISH POLITICS

Nation Looks Forward to Change in Government Next Week.

By The Associated Press

MADRID, July 23—With Seville under martial law as the result of disorders in which 17 persons were killed, the tenseness of Spain's political situation increased today as the nation looked forward to a change in government next week.

It was predicted that when the assembly is formally constituted Monday or Tuesday, the cabinet would immediately resign. Forecasts were that the parliament would choose Alcala Zamora as president—he now holds that post provisionally—and that he would summon either Manuel Azana, present war minister, or Alejandro Derroux, foreign minister, to the premiership.

The seriousness of the situation in Seville was made clear when martial law was pronounced only half an hour after Miguel Maura, minister of the interior, announced he would oppose calling in the military authorities.

Despite the subsequent developments, Maura remained optimistic about the government's ability to suppress such uprisings as the syndicalist strike outbreaks in Seville.

Socialist Deputy Theidomiro Minnendez of Austulas, declared the situation was most grave.

The proclamation declaring martial law in Seville set forth that troops would fire on the slightest warning and that therefore residents had best keep off the streets and out of balconies.

But instead of being taken across the street, Hunter was taken into an alley. His cane was thrown away. He was robbed of his billfold, containing $42.

COULDN'T STOP HIM

Clevelander Ends Life After First Attempt Is Balked.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., July 27—After an ambulance crew balked his effort to commit suicide by carbon monoxide poisoning here early today, Frank Kerhart, 52, fought off his would-be rescuers and shot himself to death. Neighbors said he formerly was a wealthy contractor in Chicago.

Patrolman Harry Eaton and Fireman Harvey Burns found Kerhart semi-conscious from the fumes of his automobile motor. He had shut himself in his garage.

Kerhart refused to allow ambulance men to use a resuscitator on him, after he had been carried into the house. When Eaton left the room, he broke loose from Burns and ran back to the garage. While driving off Burns with his fists, Kerhart obtained a revolver and shot himself twice. He had been despondent over losses in the 1929 stock market collapse.

Bonded School Debts in County, City Total $409,000

NO NEW ISSUES IN FIVE YEARS

Rural Districts To Pay Out Short Time; Waldo Has $699.

Marion county school districts in better condition so far as debts are concerned than they have been for many years, with total bonded indebtedness of all the districts standing at $409,000. This is revealed by the report of the state examiner released yesterday through the state bureau of inspection and supervsion of public offices, and additional information furnished by C. B. Rayburn, county superintendent of schools.

Six To Pay Off

The debt figure, taken as of January 1 this year, will be considerably reduced by bonds retired Sept. 1 in the various districts. After the payment of bonds Sept. 1, six districts in the county will be without any bonded debt.

Sept. 1 will be a memorable date in the county school districts, as it marks the final payment on bonds issued in 1923 in all districts of the county which had what was known as a "floating indebtedness."

In 1923, the districts were required by law to issue bonds for the amount of the floating indebtedness with the bonds sold for this purpose scheduled to run eight years. Sept. 1 will bring the final payment in the eight-year retirement plan.

Marion county schools in 1923 had "floating debts" totalling $34,000. Under laws then existing, the school boards could borrow money for any purpose and carry it as a floating debt. Under the law requiring bond issues, the method of retiring school debts has been placed on a much sounder and more secure basis, in the opinion of school authorities.

The retirement of bonds replacing the "floating debts" has been the only forward step taken in the rural schools toward ridding themselves of debt.

No Bonds in 5 Years

No school bonds have been issued in the last five years in any of the 15 county school districts, Superintendent Rayburn said. The bonded debt figures have been reduced each year, bringing the total bonded debt of the rural districts well below the half million mark. And the most cheerful note of the situation for taxpayers is the statement of Superintendent Rayburn that no new school buildings will be needed for years.

The result of reducing the bonded debt is a direct savings to taxpayers of the various school districts, as the interest paid on bonds often equals the amount of principal paid.

Prospect has the largest outstanding school debt of any district in the county outside Marion city. In 1922 bonds were issued for a $150,000 school building for that village. Besides reducing its "floating debt" bonds, it has reduced the school bonds to the present total of $118,000. If no new bonds are issued, its debt will be retired by 1944.

LaRue, which financed a new school building five years ago by issuing bonds, has a debt of $66,000, the second largest in the county. Pleasant township, which also had a new school five years ago, owes $60,000 on the building. Green Camp owes $59,800 on its modern building.

Claridon Owes $38,000

The Montgomery township district has a bonded debt of $44,627; and Claridon, which five years ago financed the erection of a new building, owes $38,000.

The remaining districts are nearly or entirely out of debt. Scott township owes $9,577 which will be retired by 1934. Morral village figures are almost identical, with that district owing $9,600.

Waldo school district which owes $699 and Richland township owing $100 will be without bonded debts after Sept. 1. Grand Prairie, Marion township, Tully township and Caledonia have no bonded debt at present.

HURT IN ACCIDENT

A concession has been granted for harnessing the Rio Tunel in the Mexican state of Durango for the production of hydroelectric power.

Windows have been invented that slide up and down like ordinary sash and also swing inward on hinges to permit washing of the outside of the glass.

Marion Man Is Now Like New Thanks to Ton-Gee

Well known local citizen says he was amazed at the great new medicine.

ENDED YEARS SUFFERING

MR. WALTER R. PICKERING
687 Wood St., Marion

Among those who are strongly indorsing Ton-Gee probably none is better known that Mr. Walter R. Pickering of 687 Wood St., Marion. Mr. Pickering is a press operator and has lived in Marion for many years.

"I never saw anything like Ton-Gee," reads Mr. Pickering's statement. "I am feeling almost like new since I got this medicine.

"Since 1918 I had been almost a health-wreck. My kidneys caused me great trouble. I had to get out of bed 5 or 6 times a night. I felt so stiff and achy all over my body that it hurt me to walk, and especially in the mornings. I could hardly get up out of bed. I was subject to dizzy spells and black spots would appear before my eyes. My liver was sluggish and I was forced to take laxatives all the time for constipation. It seemed like my entire system was full of poison and my whole body was a solid mass of aches and pains.

"That was exactly my condition, but since I got Ton-Gee everything is different. I don't have dizzy spells any more, and my kidneys are acting fine. I never have to get up at nights, but instead, I can sleep right on through, and in the mornings I feel fine. The condition of my liver is perfect, and my bowels are regulated now, and my whole system has been relieved of misery. After the wonderful work of Ton-Gee in my case, I am glad to recommend this medicine to the public.

MAIL RULE CHANGE

Parcel Post Package Size and Weight Altered.

A change in the weight and size limits of fourth class or parcel post mail which is effective Aug. 1 was announced today at the postoffice.

The weight limit allows a parcel of up to 70 pounds to be mailed up to a distance of 300 miles, and over 300 miles, a parcel weighing 50 pounds. This is to be changed to 70 pounds to a parcel for both classes, which includes all zones. The size limit restricts a fourth class parcel to 84 inches in length and girth, which is to be raised to 100 inches in length and girth.

A new ruling on fourth class parcels weighing less than 10 pounds has been made which provides that if the parcels measure more than 84 inches in length and girth but not more than 100 inches in these dimensions the postage charge is to be the same as the zone charge on a ten-pound parcel for the particular zone to which the parcel is addressed

Says Peace of World Depends on Children

Mrs. "Private" Peat Tells Chautauqua Youth Must Be Taught To Hate War; Mardoni, Escape Artist, Closes Program Tonight.

Upon the children and the shap[illegible] of their mental attitude, rather [illegible] upon world courts, peace [illegible] or leagues of nations, will [illegible] the establishing of a last[illegible] world-wide peace, is the belief [illegible] "Private" Peat who spoke [illegible] Garfield park last night as the [illegible] number on the Chautauqua [illegible].

[illegible] each of the peace agencies [illegible] done some good for the rea[illegible] that they have caused people [illegible] talk and talk peace, they will [illegible] able to accomplish their [illegible], it was contended by the [illegible], for the reason that those [illegible] are interested, are the older [illegible] and the abolishing of future [illegible] is in the hands of the chil[illegible].

Teach Hate for War

[illegible] training of the child mind [illegible] war and all of its sordid consequences, is the only hope of peace but the youth of today, on the constant search for thrills, does not provide good material for such training, the speaker said. "Peace contains no 'kick' and the youth is interested in nothing which does not contain a 'kick'. Therefore the hope of an everlasting peace is to make peace as interesting as war."

International co-operation rather than international competition was suggested by the speaker as a means of bringing about an adjustment of world conditions, and upon America, the now recognized world leader, will fall the responsibility of such a program, she said.

A feature of the second concert of the day by the Ramos Mexican orchestra who opened the night program, was a piano selection by Hesiquio Ramos, director of the orchestra, who played a number which won for him the International piano contest at Mexico City more than 30 years ago.

The evening program was composed principally of Mexican and Spanish music.

A nominating committee composed of Earl Hale, chairman, O. E. Wheaton and Loy Cookston was announced by George Whitehead, platform superintendent. The committee will prepare the list of officers for the Chautauqua for next year to be presented at the closing number of the season tonight.

Afternoon Concert

Colorful, picturesque, delightfully entertaining, the Ramos Mexican orchestra made its first appearance in Marion yesterday afternoon. The selections played were beautiful, many of them strange to the audience because they were of the Ramos' native country, Mexico, and not heard north of the Rio Grande. The women in their black lace mantillas and native dress added an exotic touch to the stage.

Rosa Ramos, gifted with a full, lovely soprano voice, Lupe Ramos, vivid young senorita with a contralto voice and Conception Ramos, alto, contributed five vocal trios, "West of the Great Divide," "Lover Come Back to Me," "Marquita," "El Paje," anad "Pa Paloma."

The three daughters of Hesiquio Ramos, director-pianist, are talented players of the mandola, mandocello and mandolin, and the son, Rafael, accomplished violinist, with their father at the piano, played "El Relicario," "Zampa Overture," two Mexican marches, a Mexican one-step, "Poutpurrit," including a Spanish selection, Lizst's "Liebestraume" and "Drigo's "Serenade," and "Over the Waves."

Mrs. Ramos accompanies her talented family wherever they go and was backstage yesterday afternoon and last night to assist her daughters in the dressing rooms. The family is gracious and charming to meet.

Mardoni, the magician, mind reader and escape artist who is to be seen tonight at Garfield park, starting at 8 p. m., has a secret which is little short of miraculous. Police all over the country have tried to learn how he slips out of handcuffs, releases himself from strait-jackets and makes his way out of tightly nailed and heavily roped boxes.

Escape from Box

Tonight's program will include an escape from a large box, nailed and roped by members of the Marion police force. Mardoni also will demonstrate mind-reading, with the assistance of Madam Mardoni. He will introduce magic and illusions as part of his mystifying entertainment.

Tonight's entertainment by Mardoni will bring to a close the 1931 Chautauqua. Plans are being made for a 1932 Chautauqua. Whether this will be possible, members of the committee said, will depend upon the response for tickets. At least 200 more pledges for tickets should be secured in order to provide satisfactory numbers for next year's program.

Fite Memorial Church To Hold Picnic Saturday

A picnic for the members of the Fite Memorial Baptist church will be held Saturday afternoon at the United Brethren park, south of Marion. The committee on transportation has planned for the members to leave the church at 1:30 p. m. with automobiles provided for those desiring means of reaching the grounds. All members of the church are invited to attend and an interesting program has been arranged.

Legion and Auxiliary Hold Outing at Park

Nearly 200 members of the American Legion and the auxiliary made Lincoln park the scene of an outing late yesterday afternoon. Families and friend of members of the organizations were guests.

The first feature of the outing was a ball game between members of the Legion and the Erie traffic club, in which the Erie team chalked up 14 points to the Legionnaires' five.

After a picnic supper, various contests, a social hour and an entertainment by "Rob and Bill," radio entertainers who are touring the state under sponsorship of the American Legion completed the program of events.

The Rewards of Life.

The man who leaves an estate of a million dollars is acclaimed successful. He evidently got out of life what he wanted, people presume. His reward was ample for his efforts.

Dr. Albert Michelson, the renowned physicist, left an estate of $37,000. When he died a few months ago, however, no one was concerned about the estate. They were concerned solely with the world's loss in the death of so great a man. He died while a device designed to measure the speed of light was being demonstrated successfully. He measured the fixed stars. He told men that there are suns 300 times as great as the one which warms the earth. He served as president of the National Academy of Sciences, was a Nobel prize winner, and holder of the Copley medal of the Royal Society of England. He had been honored countless times for his distinguished service to science, and enjoyed a respected position among learned men and women of all nations.

Yet, Dr. Michelson did not amass as much wealth as a bullet-headed wrestler or a clever professional golfer. Moving picture stars and radio crooners make as much in a month as this distinguished American saved in a lifetime, and he was by no means a reckless spender.

Can any one doubt, though, that Dr. Michelson got out of life what he wanted, or that his reward was ample for his efforts? His work belongs to the ages, and his fame will be everlasting. Best of all, it did not require his death to awaken the world to his importance.

More Cancellationist Stuff.

"It is sheer,clotted nonsense," according to the expressed opinion of Robert Morse Lovett, "to say that the United States has a mere academic interest in and no real responsibility for the success of the conference on disarmament to be held in 1932. On the contrary, the responsibility of the United States for disarmament exceeds that of any other country, in proportion to its peculiar responsibility for the present menacing aspect of the world."

Mr. Lovett, it may be well to explain, is professor of English literature at the University of Chicago and associate editor of the New Republic, and thus expresses himself in an editorial in the bi-weekly clip sheet of the National Council for the Prevention of War.

That an editorial utilized by what may be taken as a pacificist organization will carry much weight with patriotic Americans is open to question. It should not, nor should any similarly-sponsored editorial on the subject in question, especially one by a member of the staff of the New Republic, the name of which may be taken to imply dissatisfaction with our present form of government and the dream of one along somewhat different lines.

The reasons for the position taken by Professor Lovett are not impressive. He holds that the United States, in the first place, by intervention in the World war, made impossible the only outcome which would have carried promise of a settlement of world troubles—that is, a "peace without victory."

If the past thirteen years have made any one thing in connection with the World war plainer than another it is that the chief difference in the present-day situation, had this country not intervened, would be that Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium would be obligated to pay billions to Germany, instead of the other way around, while this country would have the billions it expended in the war, the billions it loaned to those who are now its unwilling debtors and be ahead the billions it has paid out here at home and will have to pay out as a result of the war, to say nothing of the casualties suffered by our patriotic young manhood.

"In the second place," Professor Lovett says, "the United States, though bound in honor to the Central powers by the terms of the pre-armistice agreement to assure peace on the basis of the fourteen points, shamefully renounced this obligation, and assisted in drawing up a treaty of spoliation. That the senate refused to ratify this treaty does not diminish the moral responsibility of this country."

Herein we have a repetition of the old, old view that this country must be held responsible for a treaty in the drawing of which the then president of the United States participated in the face of the warning of the only body constitutionally qualified to ratify it that it would not be ratified, a treaty which never was ratified by this country, and in lieu of which a treaty was entered into with Germany which is beyond reproach.

We are inclined to agree with the professor when he says that "one of the few hopeful clauses in the treaty of Versailles provided for general disarmament." There is no inclination on our part to deny that the Allies have evaded fulfillment of this clause. We will even agree that it has been treacherously avoided, but we can not subscribe to the professor's view that the United States must put an end to this avoidance by the Allies of their treaty obligations to redeem this country's honor. This country's honor is not involved in the course of the Allies in this respect and it is utter rot to hold it to be involved.

"And finally," says this Chicago professor, "the United States is directly responsible for the armament of Europe after the war by virtue of the immense military stores virtually presented to France, and the loans granted to that country, which enabled her to finance the armament of her Allies.

"Practically the only sums which are covered by the financial settlement with France are these post-war armament loans. There is every reason why the United States should, by the cancellation of these loans, if necessary, purchase from France the fulfillment of the purposes for which it sent its sons to death—to end war."

In a word, Professor Lovett would have the United States, which already has so whittled down the loans made to the Allies as to leave practically only the amounts of the loans made since the war to enable them to proceed with the work of reconstruction, forgive them the remainder of the debts they owe us, and he assumes that this would fulfil the purpose for which this country "sent its sons to death—to end war."

And here we have another reiteration of that untruthful slogan of war times about going to war to end war, when even the youngsters of America knew at the time that we as a people were shocked into action by the crimes against humanity in general and our nationals in particular, and went to war, mad clear through, with a desire to "knock the stuffing," as it was often expressed, out of Germany.

And now it is proposed that we forgive the Allies their debts "to end war," when for over a decade we have seen them building up their armed effectiveness despite the debts they owe us. Forgiving them their debts would simply mean the releasing of more funds with which to augment their military establishments.

It is pleasing to know that former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, who was taken suddenly ill near Duluth, last week, has sufficiently recovered to continue his vacation fishing trip to the Lake of the Woods. Even though those against whom he has long been arrayed pay him the tribute of being honest in his convictions and unafraid to voice them, and men of that kind can not well be taken from any walk in life.

By agreement of counsel, $40,000 have been transferred from the estate of the late Alexander Moore to the estate of the late Lillian Russell, that the daughter of the latter, Dorothy Russel Calvit, may receive therefrom an income of $50 a week for the remainder of her lifetime. This isn't the half of the $600,000 estate of the late ambassador for which Mrs. Calvit sued, but in he absence of expression to the contrary, it is to be assumed that she is content. No expression has come from the Moore tomb.

Editorial Opinion.

FORTY-MILE MINIMUM.

Acting upon the theory that slow drivers are responsible for more accidents than speeders on congested thoroughfares, the Indiana state police, on week ends only, will enforce a minimum speed limit of forty miles an hour on Dunes highway, U. S. 12, between Gary and Michigan City.

This is on the direct route from the east to Chicago and is said to be the busiest two-lane rural road in the United States. The new order is intended to facilitate traffic flow and reduce the number of accidents. A further regulation is that any motorist overtaking or passing a car traveling in the same direction will be arrested for reckless driving. This makes forty miles an hour both minimum and maximum speed. It virtually bars inexpert drivers and seriously defective cars.

This experiment will be watched with more than ordinary interest. The police order to step on the gas may be in partial fulfilment of a prediction made at the recent convention of the Society of Automotive Engineers that common speed of 100 miles an hour on public highways will be an early attainment. The engineers are in accord with the Indiana state police that snailing drivers on crowded roads are serious menaces, causing endless delays and much confusion and necessitating the frequent cutting in and out of traffic lines by the driver who expects to arrive on the same day at his destination.—Toledo Blade.

CANADA SMILES AT THE TOURIST.

Canada is watching anxiously at the bridgeheads. She is wondering how her third largest industry is going to make out in 1931. That industry is the entertaining of tourists from south of the border.

It is one of the few lines of trade that did not show a serious loss between 1929 and 1930. The vacation season of the former year was almost over before the sad days of November when the stock market slid out of the New Era heaven. Hence 1929 was a better than normal year.

So a substantial decrease in the tourist trade might have been expected in 1930. But it proved to be less than six per cent. The 1930 tourists from the states paid over $200,000,000 to Canadian innkeepers, merchants, railroads, steamship lines, guides and dispensers of hot dogs last year. There were more tourists than in 1929, but they spent less.

From an economic point of view the 1930 tourist industry saved the day for Canada. It was the big "invisible item" which created a favorable trade balance at a time when old King Wheat was not smiling. Canada is hopeful that it will repeat this year. The start is said to be promising. Canada figures that many Americans who would normally go abroad by crossing the Atlantic will do it this year by crossing the lakes. The attractions are many and the cost is much less. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE IMMUNES.

The record smashing torrid spell has had its full share of casualties the country over.

Strangely enough, the one class of men that seemed to be 100 per cent. immune was made up of those who bestir themselves most strenuously out in the sun, in the heat of the day, namely, the professional baseball players. Out under a pitiless afternoon sun, racing around bases, sprinting to get under fly balls, these fellows seemed to thrive on the heat that was toppling less active citizens into hospital cots.

Why this immunity? The answer, we believe, may be stated in just two words—spring training. When the teams reach southern camps in February and March, many of the members are almost as soft as the average spectator who sits in summer grandstands. But when the season opens in April, the boys are fit to face just about any sort of blistering the summer has to offer.

Some millions of folk other than baseball players could benefit by more spring training. Any man under fifty—and many a man over that age—who is free of organic disease, could make himself reasonably immune against summer heat, if he thought of his spring training as something a little more strenuous and a little more continuous than two or three rounds of golf a week.—Minneapolis Journal.

Stump Water and Black Cats.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Nothing is more interesting than to read some of the humorous advice given in Mark Twain's stories. The use of "stump water," incantations, and black cats swung by the tail in the moonlight, were a few of the "cures" his characters recommended for warts.

For many centuries it was believed that warts decrease in size and number with the waning of the moon. To walk backward on a moonlight night to a hollow stump filled with water, into which the hand is thrust, was a sure cure!

In certain parts of England, it is still believed that warts rubbed with bacon will disappear. This cure takes place only if the bacon is afterward inserted under the bark of an ash tree! It was thought the warts of the victim would eventually show up as bumps on the tree.

A wart is a tumor of the skin. It develops on the hand, usually during childhood. Of course, a wart may be found on some other part of the body and it may be seen in adult life.

As a rule there is no pain attached to this tumor-like growth. A wart may cause pain if situated in a location where it becomes irritated, such as on the knuckle or along the nail. In such a position it is apt to crack and bleed, causing pain.

Warts that appear in large numbers on the backs of hands of children usually disappear spontaneously, or may do so after some sort of local treatment. Single warts which appear in adult life do not disappear so readily.

They may be removed by a knife or by caustics. Monochloracetic acid is extensively used for the removal of warts.

The acid should never be used without the supervision of your doctor. Too frequent applications may cause unpleasant damage to the skin.

The applications are continued once daily over a period of three days. The process may be repeated on another occasion and as often as is necessary to completely destroy and remove the wart.

AN OUTSIDE VIEW.

Editor Star—Under the heading, "What is wrong with Marion?" I would say that it's the same jinx that's troubling every town and city in the country. In the opinion of this writer the attempt to maintain wartime prices is the largest factor in the whole problem. We hear a great deal of talk about keeping up high wages to avoid breaking the purchasing power of the working man, but it seems to me about the surest way to break that power is to put him out of a job.

R. B. Walling.

Marion—Seen Through Local Eyes.

The following is the answer of one citizen to the question, "What Is Wrong with Marion?"—the first in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer to get a comprehensive insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy for handicaps, if any, from which Marion may suffer. From day to day, answers of various citizens to the same question will be given publicity on this page.

"What is wrong with Marion?"

Marion's citizens have had but very little patriotism for the town, its institutions or industries. There has been a little disposition for groups interested in the same thing to work together. Marion has lacked leadership.

Whizzing Worlds.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Until very recently speeds in the celestial bodies were rated low. Take that slow old bus, the earth. It has an average speed with reference to the sun of only about 18.6 miles per second. The speed of spiral nebulae, even was not found to be very high, measured in the hundreds rather than the thousands of kilometers. But the new spectroscopic methods have resulted in the discovery of much higher speeds. First 3,000, then 4,000 miles per second. The latest finding of Humason is a nebula with a speed of some 17,500 miles per second!

The singular thing about these nebulae is that they are all recessive. They are traveling away from us—and we are traveling away from them—with vertiginous speed. It begins to look as if the whole universe were being blown up from within by some mighty breath at the center of things. An expanding universe is an amazing thought and one to which we can not readily accustom ourselves.

Some astrophysicists are in doubt regarding the results of their new spectroscopic measurements. They are not satisfied that the velocities found by computation are the actual radial velocities. Perhaps there is some uncompensated "Einstein effect" due to the curvature of light rays in a finite universe.

In the effort to investigate one phase of this question, Dr. Gustav Stromberg has recently been studying the light rays from the very remote nebulae. The remoter the nebulae, the faster they are receding from us—according to the evidence of the spectroscope. The light rays from some of these nebulae have been on their way coming to us some 70,000,000 years. Have these very ancient light rays grown weary in their long passage through the interstellar spaces? Are they still speeding along at the uniform speed of light, namely about 186,000 miles per second?

In making his investigation Dr. Stromberg has utilized the well-known principle of aberration, discovered several centuries ago by Bradley. To illustrate, suppose drops of rain are falling vertically downward and you are walking forward at a brisk pace, holding aloft a hollow tube. If you hold the tube vertically, the drop falling into the tube will hit on the rear side of the tube part way down. But if you hold the tube in a vertical plane but with the top tilted forward by the proper amount, the drop falling into the top of the tube will fall straight through the tube without striking its inside surface. The inclination depends upon the ratio of the velocity of the falling drop to the velocity of the pedestrian.

In Dr. Stromberg's experiment, if the velocity of light from a nebula differs from that of a neighboring star, the nebula would appear shifted a small amount in the course of a year as the observer's own motion varied. But this was not found to be the case.

Further, the astronomers are finding nebulae much further away than hitherto believed. Dr. Robert J. Trumpler of the Lick observatory finds that the Orion nebula is three times as far away as was formerly thought. It is now shown to be distant from the earth some 1,800 light years. It is so big that light takes twenty-six years to cross it.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

A Horseshoer's Skill.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

George Robertson, who went in 1817 from Lancaster, Kentucky, to Washington, to take his seat as representative in congress, tells an interesting story of this trip which was made on horseback over the Zane trace, or trail as it was then called. Members of congress were then allowed three dollars for every twenty miles of their journey, and it was as tedious and toilsome as it was expensive.

"I bought a blooded three-year-old horse for my first journey to Washington," says Judge Robertson in his autobiography. "He had never been shod. An old friend who was famous for both skill and care in the management of horses, took my horse and prepared him for the work before him. The day before I started he selected the iron and the shoes, saw the shoes put on, and every nail made and driven; and when he brought the horse to me he said: 'Now, George, all's right; your horse will carry you over the long and rocky road to Washington, without breaking a shoe or loosening a nail.'

"And so it turned out. Several gentlemen who accompanied me frequently had their horses' shoes removed or repaired, and mine reached Washington with his shoes apparently as sound and firm as when I started. I sent him to the country to remain during the session, which continued about seven months. He was brought to me the day I left for home, and the keeper told me that he had used him as a saddle horse and never had touched his shoes, which seemed as good as ever.

"Being impatient to get started, I did not have them examined, but rode him as he was to Wheeling and brought him to Maysville on a floatboat or 'ark' and rode him thence to Lancaster, and when I reached home both hoofs and shoes seemed to be in good condition."

Kentucky had an extension of the Zane trace made from limestone to Lexington, which was in time improved into a real road. With Henry Clay's help, a bill was put through congress providing for a federal subscription of half its cost, $150,000, but Jackson vetoed it, it was reported, because of enmity toward Clay.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, July 24

ACCORDING to the major aspects bearing rule on the affairs of this day there should be many excellent opportunities for advancement, promotion, honors, dignities and favors from those in places of position and power. It is an auspicious time for courting these, albeit with great discretion and tact, and preferably in old and tried lines, or employment, rather than in new ventures. The latter are beset with many dangers and difficulties and there may be some sudden agitation.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of large opportunity for reaching high goals, with personal popularity and prestige, particularly in employment or in old and tested fields. Favors, promotion, honors are presaged in these, but new projects are hazardous, and there is menace of sudden upheavals. A child born on this day should be efficient, versatile, ambitious and should attain substantial favor in employment or enviable position on its own account

Old Books Make Comeback in Popular Favor Here

The busiest place in Marion this summer is the public library. From 8 in the morning until 9 at night a constant stream of borrowers, and many times two or three such streams converge, keeps the librarians "on their toes."

In one hour the other afternoon 72 books were distributed. And the borrowers all have the same chant: "I want something light to read."

Fiction in Demand

Fiction is holding the fort. Nothing else is of interest. Few of the club women have begun to think of preparing papers, and the summer readers want books to read for pleasure, not volumes to stir the gray matter into action.

The librarians contribute the unusually heavy circulation this summer to unemployment. It may seem unusual, but they say that men and women and the younger boys and girls with no work to occupy their hands and minds, borrow books at the library at no cost to them and while away an afternoon or evening.

There is an unprecedented return of the old novels to public favor. This, the librarians contribute to the present over-abundance of extremely frothy heroes and heroines in modern novels and the undercurrent of sincerity which characterizes the older books and the moral generally found in them.

The American Library association has printed a list of 100 books chosen by Nathan G. Goodman with the assistance of 100 educated men and women whose names are in "Who's Who in America."

Goodman List

The books have been listed in the order of their popularity and Franklin's "Autobiography" heads the list.

Lovers of the old novels will be pleased to learn that Charlotte Bronte's famous novel, "Jane Eyre" is ninth on the list. The first 10 books on the list offer a diversity of reading matter that should interest the reader who is in search of the best reading matter combined with entertainment.

The first 25 volumes on the list follow: Franklin's "Autobiography"; "Don Quixote," Cervantes; "Scarlet Letter," Hawthorne; "Les Miserables," Hugo; Shakespeare's plays; Emerson's Essays; "Treasure Island," Stevenson; "Anna Karenina," Tolstoi; "Jane Eyre," Bronte; "Last of the Mohicans," Cooper; "Sketch-Book," Irving; "Short History of the English People," Green; "Three Musketeers," Dumas; "Up from Slavery," Washington; "The Oregon Trail," Parkman; "Ivanhoe," Scott; "David Copperfield," Dickens; "Vanity Fair," Thackeray; "Robinson Crusoe," Defoe; "Two Years Before the Mast," Dana; "Tom Sawyer" or "Huckleberry Finn," Mark Twain; "Gulliver's Travels," Swift; "French Revolution," Carlyle; "Pere Goriot," Balzac; "The American Commonwealth," Bryce.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YOUNISS and her mother and father came over to our house last night, but me and Jubilee had went to bed, so I didn't see them, but when I had let Jubilee down from the rope and had went down in the morning and milked the cow and fed her dotter and talked about how near Youniss got drowned with the bunch, and went in and strained the milk and sot down to eat my face, I was having a good time watching myself and eating pancakes, thinking how every time I bent my elbow my mouth flew open my father yelled "Hey!" and scairt me so I almost went over backwards, and then they all laughed. He said he had spoke to me three times. Then I found out about Youniss and her folks being there, and I hadn't told my folks about Youniss falling in the river, but they had, and my mother asted me if that was where the boy got drowned last week, and I told her it was, an she said she was just beginning to understand why mothers get grey hair, and my grandfather asted her what made old maids get gray hair, and my aunt looked mad but didn't say anything.

I wanted to ast her if she wasn't feeling well, but my father was talking to me, and he was saying that Younisses folks said they always felt like Youniss was safe when she was with me, and he said he was proud of me and glad I am a good swimmer. He said he was proud that I told Younisses mother that if I had not saved her I would still be in the river with her, and he said that I had the right idee. He said that when I was out with girls or with littler boys they were in my care and I must always see that they didn't get drowned or hurt or anything and I mustn't ever be afraid of what might happen to me whilst they were in danger. Then my mother asted him if he meant I was to sackrisfy my life to save others, and he said I was if it was necessary. He said after a thing was oer a fella didn't get any joy out of life if he had been a coward. Then he gave me two bits and my grandfather gave me two bits and my mother wiped her eyes and kissed me, and the girls came and we all went and got some ice cream with my money.

The Lost Bag of Tripe said whenever we wanted some more he would push Youniss in the river and I could pull her out. He said he wished his folks were such simps as mine, and just then Feeble put a spoonful of ice cream down his neck and he went to throw a spoonful at her, and I remembered what my father said and pasted him, and when the man that owned the ice cream parlor got to us we were under the table having a grand time and kicking chairs in every direction. We all got run out on the sidewalk, so then we went and got our cows and took them to the pasture. The Lost Bag of Tripe has found that he can't munky with me and get away with it. We found some ripe May apples in a field and et a lot of them. They must be called that because they don't get ripe in May.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Meekly Leaves the Sick Room.

NOT by word or look did I protest Dr. Quigley's ruling that I was to go to bed, but, as I walked away with Lillian, who was obeying his injunction to take me away, I felt that my cup of humiliation was filled to the brim.

"No nurse can do justice to the care of a child-patient with a nervous mother on her hands," the words rang in my ears like the insistent clanging of fire bells.

So, I was a "a nervous mother," one who was more of a hindrance than a help in a sick room! I was being well punished. I told myself bitterly, for the sense of superiority I always had felt toward the woman who could not control her emotions with an iron hand whenever there was a necessity for her to be calm and resourceful.

"This Miserable Play"

"Oh! Lillian," I said, despairingly, as we came back into my room and saw the last typed pages of the third act of my play scattered in confusion as we had left it when Katie had summoned us to the baby, "think what this has cost me!"

"What do you mean, cost you?" Lillian's tone was rougher than I had heard it in many a day, and goaded me into impassioned speech.

"Are you blind? Can't you see?" I cried. "This miserable play has cost me my right to be with my baby when she is ill unto death. If I had not been so exhausted by this night's work in order to be ready when Philip Veritzen cracks the whip tomorrow, the doctor never would have dared to send me to bed as if I were a neurotic."

If Lillian had any inclination to comment that I was exactly what I had said, she carefully repressed it.

"Lie down here," she commanded, as if I had not spoken, and turned down the covers of my bed as she did so.

"I'll run you a bath," and after you have taken that and a shower, I'll tuck you into bed. Take my advice and lose the two Spection Sisters—Intro and Retro—into their cells until you wake up. And let me tell you something. Your baby is not 'ill unto death.' I grant you that a convulsion isn't anything to monkey with—it's probably the most terrifying thing a child can stage. But unless there is an accompaniment of some deadly illness, and both your nurse and your doctor agree that there is not, you have no reason for the desperate fear which is hanging over you. I've seen a number of them myself, and I know."

"Was I All Wrong?"

Lillian was through the door as she finished and, looking after her, a rush of memory came to me, a memory of the time in my early married life when the aversion I had cherished for Lillian Underwood had been first lessened by a glimpse of the real woman under her bizarre mask.

Again I saw the evening party in our New York apartment, with Lillian the gayest of us all, when a frightened nursemaid ran in from the apartment across the hall bearing in her arms a baby in the throes of a convulsion. I remember it as vividly as if it were yesterday. Lillian's prompt resourcefulness as she took the baby from the frightened girl's arms, impressed us into her service and brought the child back to life by the time a physician arrived. It had been my first knowledge of her real self and the respect born upon that night, which has grown into an affection only surpassed by the love I give to my husband, my children and my father. She had never failed me in all the years of our friendship. She was not failing me now, but there came to me in a blinding flash the realization that I was failing her. She it was who had insisted that I finish the work for Philip Veritzen in the record-breaking time necessary for the accomplishment of the work for which he had asked.

My outburst about my night's work must have been like a slap in the face to her.

Was I all wrong? Was the primitive, overmastering desire to care for my baby in illness of a piece with the action of the ignorant peasant mother, who snatches her baby from a physician's arms and runs away from the only help which can save it? My reason and common sense said, "yes," but something deep within cried out against my reason, and clamored fiercely that I had no right to exhaust myself by outside work—even so important and engrossing a thing as my play—that I was unequal to the task of caring for my sick child.

Only One Course

One thing was clear before me, however. Because I had failed to measure up to the physician's standard of efficiency and had failed my baby—the verdict of my overstrained nerves—was no reason why I should wound Lillian and Katherine as well. They had stood loyally by me through this strenuous night, giving every ounce that was in them in order that I might finish this piece of work for Philip Veritzen which meant so much to my literary future. There was no possibility of my being permitted to care for my baby until I rested. There was but one course—decent, self-respecting course—open to me. I must pull myself together, yield docilely to Lillian's loving care and, above all, remove from Lillian's consciousness the poison dart of ingratitude which I had just thrust into it.

SYNOPSIS

Because Jason Divitt knows she was a stowaway on the ship where Umberto, his employe, had found her, Juanita Basara's fear of exposure keeps her a prisoner in his New Orleans gambling house. Divitt and his wife, Molly, are kind to her, and the dwarf, Gabreau, Conchita's son, nearly kills Umberto when he forces his embraces on Juanita. The Turkish disguise she wears as she sells cigarettes has intrigued Adrian Fouche, who persuades his friend, Eric Ledbetter, who had lived in Turkey, to speak to her in Turkish. In their party are Kirk Stanard and his grandmother, Mrs. Belaise. As Ledbetter jests with the veiled Juanita, a newcomer, Senor Basara, of Mexico City, joins the group. Juanita, frightened, is about to run.

CHAPTER 8

A Kiss in Time

THE man beside Adrian Fouche caught Juanita's hand, babbling softly in the strange tongue. He turned to the newcomer.

"I was just saying, Senor," he observed, "that she is beautiful as an houri and fragrant as the jasmine flower, and in spite of loyalty to the noblest sheik in New Orleans, I could love her to distraction. This is the prologue to the raising of the curtain on the most glorious spectacle this side the Bosporus."

Senor Basara smiled, his glance leaving Juanita an instant and traveling about the room. Juanita lowered her face, closing her eyes. Ledbetter began again his soft jargon. Adrian spoke now in a fiery aside.

"I didn't bring you here to hold her hand and make love. I brought you to make a date for me. You said you could pull off her veil in a way that looked accidental. Now do it."

Illness shot through Juanita. Ledbetter had released her hand and she drew from him, her eyes encountering Kirk Stanard's. Stanard had been dividing his interest between their by-play and Mrs. Belaise's game. He was looking at Juanita now, smiling friendly. The exchange of glances lasted only an instant, yet a swift courage had entered Juanita when she looked again at Ledbetter. She had felt that she would fall if she tried to move. She knew now that she could not fall before those friendly, smiling eyes. She could move now—she could get away. But there was Divitt watching her. . . .

Quickly her hand moved over her tray. She selected a rose and, bending over Ledbetter, thrust it through his buttonhole, then lightly, swiftly, left a kiss upon his astonished cheek—a kiss through the mesh and spangles of her veil, yet nevertheless, a kiss.

She was gone. Molly was smiling at her where she stood in front of the cashier's cage.

"Honey, that was great. Eric Ledbetter's got a million, and this is his first look-in. I thought for a minute you were going to frost him. What's the matter?"

"I'm ill. I can't stay."

Molly saw the dilated eyes, the hands that trembled at the edge of the tray. She set the tray on a table.

"Go to your room. I'll send Conchita to you."

Juanita slipped out a side door into the court. Juanita stood a dazed instant leaning against the cool stucco of the house then she stumbled up the dark stair, and into her room locking the door, taking off her veil so that she could breathe. For a deadly instant her heart had stopped. Now it was beating in great beats that seemed to push against each other. Conchita came to the door and she bade her go away.

"A lil' orange flower water," pleaded Conchito. "He will cure anything."

Juanita drank the water. "Lay on de bed," ordered Conchita. "He cannot cure you while you run up and down."

Juanita turned on her. "Vamos!" she cried, and Conchita waddled out.

Up and down twisting her hands. How safe she had felt—when here to this very city, this very house. And she had thought him at the other end of the world. Apparently he was a friend of Adrian Fouche and of the man who had spoken to her in the strange tongue—Turkish, of course. A trap and whose? Who had suspected and brought him here? No matter. He had come, would come again. The man Ledbetter would have pulled off her veil in another instant. Yet they must have through she could not understand when they spoke in English. How tangled it was! But it was a net, and here she must stay, crowded into a corner, while they drew it tight.

Again that sudden stopping of the heart. Some one was knocking at her door. She stood rigid. Then a voice. "It is Gabreau. I have something for you."

Juanita opened the door and Gabreau handed her a note.

"It is from Eric Ledbetter," he said, 'de man what you kiss.' And as Juanita did not take it, "You not want it? Then what for you kiss him?"

"To get away," Gabreau's voice compelled an explanation.

"You not kiss him because you love him?"

"Ruen Dios no!"

"Read what he say. If he is not apologize I will keel him anyhow."

Juanita closed the door. lit the candle in the recess behind the bed. It was as she had supposed. The note was written in indecipherable characters. She went back to Gabreau.

"He has apologized," she said. Nothing would be bettered by Gabreau's killing somebody.

"It is because Divitt make him do it. Divitt say somebody make you understand dat he gun' pool off yo' veil so you go 'way. Divitt say it hurt Turk ladies' modesties when somebody pool off dey veils. Ledbetter say he beg of you pardons. He will never do dat if you will come back. So he tek out his pen and write Adrian Fouche say so too. But they laugh and I not know what he writes."

Odd that Gabreau had not suspected he would write in Turkish.

"Is he there yet?"

"For why should he go? He think you come back and kiss him some me'. De udder man he gone. De man what they call 'senor.' He have gone to ketch his boat."

Juanita breathed again. What Gabreau said huskily. "You will not do it? You will not kiss the man?" she answered quickly, "No, Gabreau!" scarcely knowing why she said. . . . So it was accident that he had come here, one of those twists of the shuttle that seemed to give significance to the whole design. And he had not even suspected, since he had gone away.

To Be Continued.

Unless some Marion city teams steps in and takes a hand in proceedings of the Commercial league affairs within a very short time softball partisans are going to see the first league championship in the history of the game here go to a team from outside the city limits. Right now the Prospect Firemen are riding the crest of the standings, one full game ahead of their nearest competitors, the Serv-U-Wel Grocers. The Kappas are trailing another half game in the rear of the Grocers.

At some earlier date in the season the Kappas and Prospect battled through 10 innings to a tie score. Yesterday the two played off the tie. Prospect won 5-2, partially through Kappa errors and partially through some brilliant ball playing. The Kappas' errors were sufficient to have beaten them if the Firemen had played only mediocre ball. However it is quite probable that had the Kappas not had a single misplay the Firemen would have won. They were playing the kind of ball that simply would not allow them to be beaten.

Four Runs in Second

The Kappas jumped into a one-run lead in the first inning of the game by battering out a trio of hits off the offerings of "Dutch" Lauer. But like a lot of other individuals they didn't seem to be able to stand prosperity so they blew up in the second and allowed Prospect to score four times on three hits, errors doing the rest. These runs were sufficient for Prospect to work on and the Kappas were effectively bottled from this point.

In the only other Commercial league fray yesterday the Serv-U-Wel Grocers did the usual thing by smacking Company B soldiers into submission by a 9-1 score. The game was scheduled at the last minute by the consent of both managers. The victory puts the Grocers up into second place, one game behind the Firemen and one-half game ahead of the Kappas.

Gasco Nine Wins

The Gasco club and Silk Mill of the Industrial league played off a protested game yesterday, the Gasco nine clubbing "Chuck" Burke's slants to the far corners of the lot to win 9-2. The game might well have been dubbed, "The Battle of Home Runs." Three of them rang off the bats during the game, two by Gasco sluggers. Bronson and Neumyer clouted them for the winners and Vic Gillis smashed one out for the Silk Mills. The Gasco club pounded out 10 safe hits to eight for the losers, but Bronson kept the Silk Mill safeties effectively scattered while the Gasco batters bunched theirs effectively. The game was started in the second inning in accordance with the ruling on the protest.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

SOME time ago Trinity Baptist was beaten in a ball game with Lee Street Presbyterians. The margin of victory was only a single run and the Baptists protested the game on a technical ruling of the umpire.

The city softball commission allowed the protest then reheard it later, sustaining its first ruling. A large number of the Lee Street team of followers believe the commission erred in making its decision. The game has been ordered played over later from the point of the game at which the error occurred. For the benefit of those interested there is being published in this column today a ruling on the play, given by Billy Evans, now manager of the Cleveland Indians, formerly dean of major league baseball umpires. A recognized authority on the game, Evans has upheld the commission's ruling. The play in question is not restated here inasmuch as those interested are well aware of its details.

When catcher threw ball to first baseman standing on bag, it retired batter and removed the force. The only way a double play could have resulted would have been for the first baseman to have received the throw from the catcher while off the bag, to have then touched player C standing on the bag, which would have retired him as he was forced to advance on the hit, and then to touch the bag, retiring the batter who didn't run. As I have said when first baseman received ball from catcher standing on bag he retired batter and removed the force and C was exempt from being put out while standing on the bag. The run that scored while the ball was being foolishly thrown about positively scores as there was no double play.

RISQUE WINS HANDICAP

By United Press

CHICAGO, July 23 — Risque, owned by Mrs. John Hertz of Chicago, was ranged among the leading fillies today after winning the Matron handicap at Arlington park yesterday. The 3-year-old filly ran the mile in a 1.42 on a slow track, finishing a length ahead of Manta, Kentucky champion, with Cousin Jo, Kentucky Oats winner, third. The race was worth $10,850 to the winner.

ROBINS, BUCS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER AND FLOCK HOLDS SECOND

Athletics Thump Cleveland Indians 7-3 and Senators Lose to St. Louis.

BY HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the nominations open for the champion hard luck player of the 1931 baseball season, Remy Kremer of the Pittsburgh Pirates is in line for a good many votes.

He has been pitching a fairly good brand of ball, but the Pirates seldom have backed him up and as a result he is far down the National league list with only six victories against 12 defeats. So far he has pitched 160 innings and allowed 164 hits.

Yesterday he suffered another setback to make it four defeats in his last five starts, three of them by one run margins. He pitched eight shutout innings against Brooklyn in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader, but lost a 3-2 decision to Freddy Heimach in one bad inning, the second when three hits and a bad throw by Traynor gave the Robins all their runs.

Robins Win Second

Pittsburgh won the first game 10-6 when the Brooklyn defense went to pieces in the sixth inning just as Joe Shaute hit a wild streak. The Pirates scored six runs on only one hit.

The Chicago Cubs furnished the real feature of the National league yesterday as they edged out Boston 5 to 4 in an eleven inning clash and climbed back to third place in the standing. Woody English made the winning wallop, a single that brought in Hensley.

John McGraw came back to the New York Giants' bench and promptly saw his team drop to fourth through a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Cincinnati Reds. Although McGraw shook up the batting order, the Giants could not hit Red Lucas effectively. Philadelphia and St. Louis were rained out.

Yanks Step Out

With the American league race looking more and more like a cut and dried affair, the New York Yankees stepped out to grab a share of the limelight. The Yanks got only an even break with Detroit, losing the first game 3-2 as George Uhle held them to six hits and winning the second 9-5. But Babe Ruth clouted two homers and Lou Gehrig one and Ben Chapman stole his thirty-seventh base, all in the second game.

Philadelphia's Athletics increased their margin to nine full games with their ninth straight triumph. The A's landed on Mel Harder in the seventh to beat Cleveland 7-3 as Rube Walberg turned in his fourteenth victory of the season while Washington took a beating from the St. Louis Browns. Two Senator moundsmen, Crowder and Burke, proved easy for the Browns, yielding 15 hits while Sammy Gray granted only six.

Chisox, Boston Split

Deep in the second division, the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox put on a good private scrap, dividing a double bill. Boston took the first game 3 to 2 in a fine pitching duel between Danny MacFayden and Red Faber, while Chicago pounded out a 5 to 3 triumph in the second clash as Al Thomas continued the good mound work and Johnny Watwood led a 15 hit attack with five safe wallops.

WINS "MORAL" VICTORY

MICKEY WALKER

If there is any such thing as a "moral" victory in this world Mickey Walker is the possessor of it today. Mickey spotted Jack Sharkey, the blustering, blundering gob from Boston 29 pounds last night and then pasted him all over the ring for 10 rounds of their 15 round battle at Ebbets field, Brooklyn. Sharkey rallied in the last five and battled his way to a draw decision. Walker recently vacated his middleweight title to take on the heavier boys. If he keeps on like he is starting some of the bigger boys had better move down into the middleweight division. It will be safer.

SPORTSMAN'S Hall of Fame

ENTRIES in the Sportsman's Hall of Fame have been rather limited during the last few weeks. Outstanding individual stars seem to be getting fewer or else the play of every one is so good that brilliant performances go unnoticed.

Two Prospect Firemen outfielders get the honor of entering the next empty niche in the realm of the famous. Gast and Mounts, left and center fielders are the pair. Both "robbed" Kappa batters of certain hits yesterday by brilliant catches in the outer gardens.

Gast made the more spectacular catch, diving for one of Marion Hinklin's hits that might easily have gone for three bases or even a home run had it eluded him. It was probably as difficult a catch as has been made in Marion softball this season. Harry Mounts also turned in some clever work afield. This is one of the big reasons why the Firemen are in first place today.

MILLERS TO CLASH WITH ST. PAUL CLUB IN CRUCIAL SERIES

Leadership of American Association at Stake as Twin-City Rivals Meet.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 23—Minneapolis and St. Paul fans today sat down to their best baseball dish of the season a series between the Saints and Millers, with the leadership of the American Association the piece de resistance.

The Millers were in third place, and six games behind St. Paul, and the four-game series probably will either send the Saints bounding away to a longer lead or cut them down to where the Colonels or Millers can knock them over the next time they meet.

The meeting of the Twin City rivals was not the only important item on the bill. Kansas City, one game back of Minneapolis and Milwaukee, a fraction of a game behind the Blues, were down to open a series, while Indianapolis, tied with Milwaukee in the standing, opens with Louisville at Indianapolis tomorrow. Toledo and Columbus will stage a cellar battle starting tomorrow.

With the exception of first place, the battle for positions is so close that almost any team outside of Toledo, can jump as high as two notches by winning a single game. There was only six and one-half games difference between Louisville and Toledo today, and the Mud Hens were four and one-half games behind Columbus, leaving the middle six clubs jammed together.

Columbus took a parting swipe at Kansas City yesterday in the only game of the day. The Red Birds flew into Herb Sanders for 12 hits, including a pair of triples by Evar Swanson, and racked up an 8 to 5 decision. They rallied for three runs in the ninth, and it was a good thing they did for the Blues scored three times in their half of the inning. The Kansas City attack was headed by Denver Grigsby who accounted for two doubles and a single, off Lefty Gudat.

Vean Gregg, left-hander who in 1909 registered 368 strikeouts in 387 innings with Spokane in the Pacific Coast league, still is pitching. He works for Hoquiam, Wash., in the Timber league.

CHINESE ASSASSINS FAIL IN DEATH PLOT

Chinese Minister of Finance, Nationalist Leader, Escapes Shanghai Attack.

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, July 23—Two bombs and a fusillade of bullets directed at T. V. Soong, finance minister and vice chairman of the Nationalist government, missed their mark here today but fatally injured Soong's secretary Tang-Yu-Loh.

Six other Chinese were injured, some of them apparently by Soong's bodyguard in answering the fire of the unidentified assassins.

The attack was launched just after Soong and his party arrived by train from Nanking. The bombs failed to explode when thrown, but one of them was discharged later when picked up by a soldier. He was possibly fatally wounded. A Cantonese student was arrested later in connection with the incident.

Tang Yu-Loh was 32 years old and married recently. He formerly was a student at the Harvard and Yale universities.

Soong, a pillar of the much harrassed Nationalist government was entering an automobile when the group attacked. Two bullets struck Tang Yu-Loh, who was near Soong.

The shots threw a large crowd into an uproar. The density of the throng prevented police from firing at the assasins, who escaped in the confusion.

Another passenger on the train was Mamoru Shirzmitsu, charge d'affaires of the Japanese legation at Nanking, whose presence at the station caused reports that he had been one of the intended victims. He was in no way involved.

PROF. MILLER TELLS OF O. S. U. FURORE

Professor "Fired" by University Trustees Is Club Speaker Here.

the speaker as reasons used by the faculty of the university for refusing to renew his contract.

Race Question

The question of intermarriage, Professor Miller said, will some day become one of the vital questions of the world. With only slightly more than one-fourth of the population of the world white and three-fourths colored, the time will come when the colored races will donimate the world, the speaker declared. In teaching this Prof. Miller said he had attempted to acquaint the students with the truth as it will be. Social objection rather than biological, are the only reasons against intermarriage and who knows but with the changing of conditions, this social objection might not be overcome, he said.

In discussing the conditions at the university, the speaker said a group of men "with practically no academic recognition in the world, have set themselves up as judges of what should and what should not be told." These men, he said, are not equipped by experience to place a check on the teaching of conditions as they really exist and as they will exist in the future.

Hemorrhoid Sufferers

End Your Piles Without Salves or Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEMROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEMROID has such a wonderful record right in this City, that Henney & Cooper says one bottle of HEMROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back.—Adv.

Seek To Discontinue One-Room District School

Morrow County Residents Divided on Proposal To Abandon Guiding Star Community Building.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, July 23—One more rural one-room school in Morrow county may be discontinued at least temporarily if the Congress township board of education goes through with a suggested plan for the consolidation of the Pleasant Grove and Guiding Star districts.

Two members of the board have stated that they will oppose the plan but the others have not yet indicated whether they approve or not. The plan was suggested by a number of residents with the idea of saving the cost of hiring one teacher.

Has Few Pupils

The Guiding Star school has only six or eight pupils and the proponents of the plan say that they could easily be transported to the Pleasant Grove district.

Miss Bernice Peoples, teacher of the Pleasant Grove school, has resigned to accept a position in the Mt. Gilead schools. Those who favor the combination have suggested that Stuart Shipman, of Edison, teacher of the Guiding Star school, be transferred to Pleasant Grove.

No Action Taken

Board members who oppose the plan and others in the community fear that the Guiding Star community would lose its identity if the school is closed. Community meetings have been held at the school for several years. No action has been taken by the board. They have not yet employed a teacher to succeed Miss Peoples.

Hello everybody. At this stage of the game I suppose a har old professional contest judge would be looking wise and saying noth I'm new in the business, and so are Cliff and "Midge," the other "jus this little old "supreme court" of ours, and so I'm going out on a limb along a tip. ARKET TREND S SLOWED UP ease in Bank of England's ite Offsets Effects of London Conference.

By The Associated Press

EW YORK, July 23—Whatever r Wall Street might have ex- ted from the results of the n-power London conference counterbalanced by the prompt ease in the Bank of England's ount rate today he financial markets, therefore, e left at a standstill. The stock rket again all but faded out. her pronounced heaviness was wn for a time, in sympathy with er closings in London and Paris. losses were partically recovered early afternoon, when a few ialties recorded small gains ding was so dull, however, that movements were of little sig- ance. Bonds were marked for her weakness of the German In foreign exchanges, sterling limited only moderately by the er bank rate.

Some Issues Up

erchandising issues came for- d in the share market, with ns of about a point appeared Sears Roebuck, Montgomery rd, Safeway Stores and First tional Stores. Borden and erican Safety Razor were also m. Leading issues such as U Steel, American Telephone, and erican Can sold off more than oint, then partially recovered s stiffened a little. New York tral recovered an early loss of points.

Wall street was not unprepared the increase in the Bank of gland's rate, in fact was some- at surprised when the rate was increased a week ago. Yester- s advices from London had in- ted that it might not be in- ased until next week, but the p losses of gold, it was felt made an eventual upturn ain.

Has Depressing Effect

is development was none-the- depressing. It represented the important reversal of the ward tendency in money s which had been in progress the stock market crash of 1929, a tendency which had expected to play an important in facilitating a return of perity, once other essential re- tments had been completed. thermore, coming simultane- with the ending of the seven- conference, it was interpret- in some quarters as reflecting pointment with the results.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Today found markets carrying fairly large supply of all kinds of seasonable fruits and vegetables with prices showing but little change from yesterday. Peas and both green and yellow wax beans were plentiful and dealers report heavy sales at three pounds for 25 cents. Cabbage was not so plentiful and dealers were asking 4 and 5 cents a pound. Cauliflower continues plentiful although the price remains at from 25 to 40 cents.

Berries have disappeared from the markets, a few were being carried by dealers earlier in the week but today found the supply extinct. Heavy sales in both watermelons and cantaloupe are reported by dealers. Watermelons were selling today at from 35 to 70 cents and cantaloupe at from three for 25 cents to 15 cents each. Southern grown peaches continue to supply a large bulk of the fruit demand, good quality peaches were selling today at four pounds for 25 cents.

GRAINS MOVE LOWER TODAY

London Conference Reports Exert Bearish Influence on Market at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 23—Grains averaged lower early today influenced by downturns in securities. Results of the international financial conference were regarded as bearish. Opening at ⅛ off to ⅛ up, wheat afterward sagged all around. Corn started ⅛@⅜ down and later held near the initial limits.

Price downturns in wheat received a check from Kansas reports of sizzling temperatures withering corn, and from consequent bulges in corn values. A quick counterbalance, however, came from official predictions of cooler weather and showers both for Kansas and other corn states eastward and north. World stocks of wheat were shown to have decreased 45,546,000 bushels during June. August 32,860,000 decrease in that month last year.

Falling off in the volume of domestic wheat arrivals continued. Chicago received but 555 cars compared with 647 a year ago. Kansas City had only 512 cars, against 1,292 on the corresponding day last week. Omaha, however, showed an increase of 252 cars compared with 162 a week ago. Arrivals of corn in Chicago were on a big scale for this season, 428 cars, contrasting with 101 on the same day last week. Oats were relatively firm, owing to scantiness of receipts.

Provisions lacked support.

REALTY APPRAISERS WORK IN 3D WARD

Building Assessors To Go on Duty in City Next Week.

The appraisement of Marion land has proven a more difficult task than was originally thought when the five appraisers named by County Auditor Earl E. Thomas began work this week.

The appraisers are now working in the third ward, and probably will remain in this ward until some time next week, Auditor Thomas said.

If present plans are followed building appraisers will be named and put to work next week. The reappraisement of factory and utility lands and buildings is already under way.

The appraisement of land has been made difficult by the unequal valuations found on a number of lots. Some will be raised, others will be unchanged, while some will be lowered in valuation.

Marion land appraisers are Karl W. Schell, Hugh Malo, D. W. Murphy, G. Farr Larie and C. D. Schaffner.

Spaghetti, Tomatoes Cause Lots of Trouble

A LARGE truck unloading cartons at the home of west side residents this morning, aroused the suspicion of neighbors who notified police.

Patrolmen in various parts of the city were notified to be on the lookout for the truck and it was apprehended on Oak street a short time later. Taken to police headquarters the driver denied having anything on his truck but spaghetti and tomatoes. After being questioned by the police and Deputy Sheriff Chester Cosgrove, the truck was taken to the Merchant's transfer where it was unloaded and the statement of the driver as to the nature of the load was verified.

poured down Walker's cheek smearing his features into a red grinning false face and gave the erratic Sharkey the incentive to come on and tie the count.

Sharkey plainly showed the effects of his ring layoff of over a year since he lost his chance to win the heavyweight title by fouling Max Schmeling in the fourth round two Junes ago.

Only once, until the Nood began to course freely down his face was Mickey in danger. Caught off balance in the fifth round a right to the chin bounced Walker to the carpet, but he jumped up immediately and there was no count.

Mickey made up for his bad fifth inning by staggering Sharkey in the eleventh.

Three times, in the fifth, eighth and fifteenth rounds Sharkey was warned either for low blows or for butting.

UNION DISCUSSES HOSPITAL STAFF

No Action Taken Following Talk by Fred Preuninger at Meeting.

The proposed establishment of a staff at the City hospital was the subject of discussion at the meeting of the Central Labor Union in Labor hall last night. Action by the body, however, was deferred.

The discussion included a short talk on the City hospital and its relation to the tax payers by Fred Preuninger of 202 Blaine avenue, who charged the formation of a staff was an attempt to secure special privileges for a few as against the general interests.

No delegates will be chosen to represent the local labor organizations at the Ohio State Federation of Labor convention to be held in Columbus in September, it was decided at the meeting last night. The conservation of funds and workers for the local program was given as the reason for the action. Tentative plans for Labor day speakers were discussed at the meeting although definite plans will not be made until the meeting on Aug. 12. A report of the auditing committee composed of J. D. Cantwell, chairman, A. J. Owens and J. W. Truka, given at the meeting last night, showed the body to be in good financial condition despite the number of members unemployed.

"Here's why I switched -how about you?"

HIS brow is wet with honest sweat—but not his Camels. Nor will yours be, no matter how hard you work or play.

Whether you labor outdoors in the rain or indoors in the heat, whether you whip a trout-stream, or whatever you do, your cigarettes will never be stained or soggy or unwholesome—if you carry Camels.

Camels are blended of fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos, made fine and kept fine, kept always in prime smoking condition.

The new Humidor Pack of moisture-proof Cellophane seals in all the natural factory-freshness—seal it in so tightly that wet weather cannot make Camel damp, nor drought weather make them dry.

When you open your package of Camels, don remove the Cellophane wrapper. Keep it on until yo have smoked the last cigarette. It's put there for you protection.

Do your throat a favor, try Camels for just one da Once you've compared their cool, smooth enjoymen with the brackish, stale taste of cigarettes packed th old way, leave them—if you can.
